

Individual panels can be connected using titles such as

- 1) Abstract,
- 2) Introduction,
- 3) Methodology,
- 4) Results/Initial Findings,
- 5) Discussion/Expected Benefits,
- 6) Acknowledgements, ...

The formatting arrangement should have a distinct/obvious flow.

Symmetry and flow are as important as the material itself. If the arrangement or consistency of visual elements is distracting the poster is no longer an effective communication media. Be aware of distance viewing and perception.

Long panel at top-center for title/author banner, associated logos.

Example Title for Poster Presentations
Jon Doe¹, Co-Doe One², Co-Doe Two³

106.67 cm (42 in)

Methodology:

- Concisely describes the
 - o experimental design, and
 - o field/laboratory methodology used or proposed to reach objectives

Results/Preliminary Findings:

- Focus results on key findings/concepts
 - o expressing significances
 - o focus on those which address the objectives of the study

Figures:

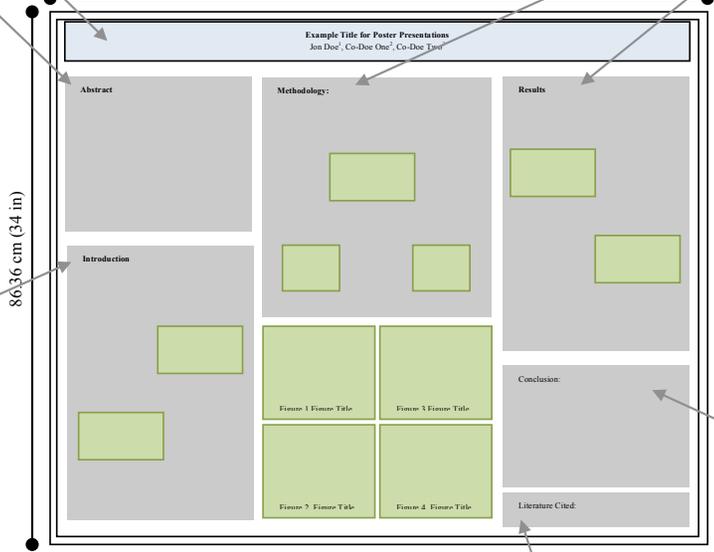

- Figures should be stand alone.
 - o headings should be concise but descriptive
 - o graph axis should be labeled
 - o keep figures clear and quickly communicate a message
 - o reduce cluttering within and among figures and graphics

Abstract:

- This should be the abstract body which was submitted for review.
- An alternative to this section is having handouts of the submitted abstract available.

Introduction:

- Introduces the reader to the study or concept being summarized.
- Clearly and concisely states objectives.

86.36 cm (34 in)

Conclusions:

- Discussion of the
 - o Results in relation to objectives
 - o Impacts or considerations due to results

Notes:

- 1) The title and visual display will draw interest or it will distract viewers.
- 2) Keep the poster simple avoid complexities unless necessary.
- 3) You know your studies; make sure the poster and other communications reflect this.
- 4) Have colleagues review your poster and any supporting documentation in advance of the presentation

Citations, acknowledgements, ... :

- There are options for displaying citations and acknowledgements.
 - o if necessary use additional media sources for distribution of sources
 - o this area could also be used for contact information